THEY DIED FOR BRITAIN

They died for Britain! Think of this, What time, with tears, ye mourn their loss, How eagerly they heard the call; How willingly they gave their all; Deeming it glorious thus to fall— They died for Britain.

They died for Britain! More than this; They died for all that Britain means. For Freedom, Justice, Truth and Light, Against the force of brutal Might; To crush the Wrong, to crown the Right, They died for Britain.

They died for Britain! Glorious land, That still has men like these to dare. They heard the battle drum of Drake, The echoes of the coast line wake, And like their sires, for her dear sake, They died for Britain

They died for Britain! Fairer doom No man could ever hope to find How dare we reckon them as lost Who, keeping ward around our coast, Live ever 'mid the deathless host Who died for Britain!

1 Two-doned effects have proved very successful in the making of woolen selfs. Here we have a set in shades of tan and brown. What good would a sweater be if it didn't have pockets? The patch pockets attached to the angora model will provide warmth for the frezen fingertips, while the cap which carries out the color scheme can be pulled far down over the ears to keep out the winds as the wearer glides gracefully over the ice.

Prom the appearance of the new mufflers it is quite evident that they have gone through a self-improvement course. They are all so facilities that it is the hardest thing in the world to make a choice. They are the property of the self-interest of the cost. Velvet tame-obstanters are quite popular with the outdoor girl. As they can be procured in all colors, one must be sure to select a tam to match her scarf or sweater, if she desires to be artistically dressed.

Fringe is used frequently to give a finishing touch to a scarf. The white scarf with a broad green band is edged with white woolen fringe. Norfolk lines are often introduced in sweater costs, and with very cloth. White fully balls, that look like mow, ornament the green-and-white close-fitting gain.

Old-rose-and-white-striped sill, trimmings and smartness to an angons assenter of old rose. The sash does much to elevate the bells.

Owing to lack of type

The High School fleys ar preposing to keep the like in good shape for skating during the writer months and to this end they have been sounding some of our worthy citias is as to whether they would stand part of the expense incurred in such a proposition. The ready response which they have received has been encouraging and the boys will try to prove themselves wor-thy of it. Should they happen to call upon you, Mr Reader, you will surely not have the heart to turn him down. The children of our town need some good healthy winter sport and for the cents you certainly would not derive them of what is their inherited right.
